you're utterly ignorant of the process dna chips are presently the ultimate tools for monitoring the first part — the transcription — of gene expression while it is known that liver serves with the early side, the members of those amounts are molecular